

Do you promote young people in the best possible way?

“If you think that the work you do with young people is worth shouting about then the truth about youth quality mark is for you. Awarded to organisations that promote young people and their work, the quality mark is a unique award as young people have developed it from the very start. The criteria has been set by US and the we will undertake the inspections. They have the final say, so you know that by achieving this quality mark you are doing what is right for young people. They deserve to have their positive contributions recognised and this is the way to do it.”

Step 1 | GETTING STARTED

Just email in a request for a self-assessment form, once you have received the form just fill it out and send it back.

Step 2 | SELF-ASSESSMENT CHECK

Once the young people have checked your self-assessment they will decide whether or not your organisation is doing enough to be awarded the Quality Mark.

Step 3 | INSPECTION

If you are given their approval they will come out and inspect your organisation and will want evidence to show exactly what is being done to promote young people.

Step 4 | AWARDED

If the inspection is successful you will be awarded the Quality Mark which can be used on all publicity and advertising materials to show that your organisation speaks up about young people and promotes them in a POSITIVE way.

If you would like to apply for the Truth about Youth Quality Mark then contact Laura Iveson via email laura@rywu.org.uk or alternatively you can ring 07939 955 325 to leave your details and we will get an application pack out to you as soon as possible.

All organisations will be supported during and after their inspections.
